Chris Kendall
Principal KL&A

Rise of Mass Timber in Colorado invites architects and design professionals to explore one of the most exciting shifts shaping the built environment today. Join Chris Kendall, Principal at KL&A Engineers & Builders, as he shares how mass timber is redefining structure, sustainability, and architectural expression across Colorado through emerging techniques and real-world project experience. With a passion for collaboration and design-forward engineering, Chris will offer an engaging look at how architects and engineers can work together to create beautiful, efficient, and innovative timber buildings.
